REPRESENTATIVE SAUES

As is usually the case on Mondays, the receipts were light. The supply consisted of some pretty fair stuff. The feeting at the opening was stronger. There really were not a sufficient amount of offerings were not a sufficient amount of the total of surface and the surface of the surfa Nothing but the best hogs are wanted and do not sell.

REPHESENTATIVE SALES The following are the representative sales of bogs Dock, Av. Price | No. Dock, Av. Price 210 SHEEP. Brief Mention. Mr. M. C. Campbell was at the yards today again, after several weeks absence. Snarks & Beebe of Norwich shipped cattle in today. Hofbauer & Pryor of Mulvane had hogs on the market. The feeling in the bog market is better. The supply of cattle today was considered good and the market was active.

DIDN'T KNOW THE 'MAN.

Two Strangers Ean Up Against Mose Frost and Were Surprised. Moses Frost stood 6 feet 4 in his socks, and was called "the best man on the river"-a phrase that expressed admira tion for his physical, not his moral, qualities. He was, nevertheless, generous, truthful, brave and altogether a fine specimen of the wilder Canadian backwoodsman. The title implied that he had successfully "tackled" all the famous "bullies" of the Upper Ottawa, even the terrible Joe Maufraud, thirty years ago written by M. Alfred Cadier, a French champion of "the French." Moses, in a Protestant clergyman at Pau, of a cereto tell me his experiences.

The blood tax which the inhabitants of the former were ordered by the pope to discharge is paid still, the ceremony taking place annually on July 13 in the mountains, about seven hours' march from Osse, at the pass known as La Peyre St. Martin. It is thus described by M. Cadier:

A GALA SCENE.

A crowd of people is to be seen making their way to the rendezvous. The shepherds of the Baretons valley, with their red waistcoats interspersed with dark threads, the mayors and delegates of the villages of Arette, Laune, Aramits and Issor, the foresters of the mountain, the custom house officers without their guns, the clergy, represented by the priest of St. Engrace and two curates, and a few English tourists from Osse helped to make up this singular assembly. When we reached the narrow stone which marks off the frontier, with the name St. Martin inscribed upon the two sides of it in French and Spanish, we found ourselves face to face with the Spaniards, who formed an imposing group. First was the alcalde of Isaba, who was to act the part of lord chief justice. He was wearing a black robe, bordered with red, and a large collarette by way of bands, while he carried in his hand the wand of justice, in the shape of a black stick with a silver knob. The alcaldes of three or four other Spanish villages were similarly attired, and they were accompanied by a numerous suite, junta of the valley of Roncal, the notary, the veterinarian, and others, the escort consisting of seven or eight armed carrabineros and guards, while in the rear had come in the hope of selling the skins of wine with which their donkeys were loaded.

It was about 9 a. m. when the cerepurty good yet, Moses, and she jumps monial, which has been observed without out, laughing.
